South Bend 1913 Edition NEWS-TIMES

Wherever man has tilled the soil and carried his product to market, in every corner of the continent and in every civilized nation on the globe, the name of South Bend is a household word.

Linked by the products of its world famed factories with the boyhood memories of every one, the name has come to symbolize honesty and quality to visualize the needs of mankind.

South Bend challenges the attention of the nation and the world to the products of her factories, and tries to tell in this South Bend-in-1913 edition the dramatic story of these things; and as well of those other things that go to make up a modern city—the public spirit of its citizens, the progressiveness of its merchants, its work in school and parks and churches and all other things that go to the making of manhood and womanhood.

South Bend is an industrial city, it is true, of striking importance in the world of trade. But it is as well a city of homes, of morality, of convictions, of love of beauty and care for children. Pre-eminence in business has been accompanied by a spirit of brotherhood.

And to these things, to all of them that factor in the make up of the city, the men whose enterprise has made South Bend have co-operated in these pages to-day to direct the attention of the nation.
